

Timely April Raincoat Sale

This sale affords you the opportunity to possess a coat guaranteed for wear, just the proper weight for spring and summer, and, best of all, at very reasonable cost.

Special $1.98
A Smart Raincoat (illustrated); loose, deep cut armholes; full box back—of waterproof rubber; sewed seams—in all sizes; can be worn over cloak; tan only.

Special $2.98
Light Weight "Slip-on" Rubberized Coat, guaranteed waterproof, perforated under arm; ideal coat for summer; olive.

Special $5.00
Ounce Weight Raincoat; plaid back; silk-finished rubber; fastened high to neck; patch pockets. Black and tan. All sizes.

Special $7.98
Priestley's Light Weight Cravenette Coat of Roseberry cloth; military collar; large nobby button over pocket. Black, tan, navy. Exceptional value.

Special $1.89
Child's Rain Cape, in fine satin finish; hood attached and plaid lined. Red and navy. For school or general wear.

Kaufmann & Company
The Store of To-Day and To-Morrow

Social and Personal

With great masses of fragrant spring blossoms used everywhere and a drapery of Southern snail and dogwood, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Patterson, at Forest Hill, was decorated for the wedding of their daughter, Mary Williamson, to Henry Watkins Ellerson, which took place yesterday evening at 6 o'clock. Tall vases of daffodils and purple lilacs decorated the mantels and garlands of the same flowers festooned the doorways and windows. The ceremony, performed by the Rev. Lewis Gibbs, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Forest Hill, and Dr. Russell Cecil, was celebrated before an improvised altar of Ardenstone lilacs and white lilies. The rooms were lighted with many candles and a stringed orchestra, screened by dogwood and palms played the wedding music and for the reception following.

The bride's wedding gown was an exquisite affair fashioned of softest white duchesse and real lace. The bodice of duchesse lace was made on a foundation of white chiffon and the drapery of the long court train was caught up with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a tulle veil edged with real lace and arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a presentation bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a diamond necklace and pendant, the groom's gift, and she was given away by her father, with whom she entered the drawing-room. Mrs. Robert Davy Eaglesfield, of Indianapolis, Ind., was matron of honor and wore a French gown of white charmeuse made with pannels of white chiffon embroidered in yellow and finished with touches of real lace and gold-colored satin. The maid of honor, Miss Margarette Wessler, a cousin of the bride, was gowned in yellow satin brocade draped in lace and trimmed in rhinestones, and both the shower bouquets of honor carried by the bridesmaids, Misses Caroline Pickrell, of New York, and Virginia

Dunlop Flour
IT'S MADE IN RICHMOND
The Dunlop Mills, Richmond, Va.

Hopkins Furniture Co.
7 West Broad St.
Cash or Credit.

The Velvet Kind
PURE ICE CREAM
Same Quality Every Day.
PURITY ICE CREAM
Monroe 1861.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE
New Method Gas Ranges
—AT—
PETTIT & CO.'S?

Stieff
PIANOS
And Players—the finest made, at makers' prices.

Shades to Order
at Ryan-Smith's
The Low Profit Policy Store

The affair is for St. Mark's Episcopal Church and the Barton Heights Methodist Church. The public is invited.

There will be a conundrum tea given this evening at 8 o'clock at Christ Church by the King's Daughters. It will be a very interesting and unique entertainment, and an interesting program has been arranged for the evening.

Confederate Ball.
April 22 is the date set for the Confederate ball, which is to be given in the ballroom of the Masonic Temple. A very distinguished company of guests will be present, and the whole affair promises to be one of the most delightful events of the spring season. All of the prettiest girls in town will come in the loveliest old gowns and frocks imaginable, many of them worn by the belles of a generation ago, and the ball will be a scene of brilliance and beauty. The patronesses will be Mesdames W. R. Vawter, C. E. Snyder, M. McRosenberg, S. E. Beveridge, Archer Anderson, S. V. West, Selden Lindsey, A. L. Holladay, C. M. Jody, E. W. Simpson, J. L. Phipps, A. M. Tyler, George Barnett, Wallace Brown, A. W. Bennett, J. Lee Davis, John Wyatt, W. G. Mahone, C. A. Timberlake, Cassie Cabell, Thomas Snyder, John S. Munce, R. E. Perkins, Robert Snyder, Charles Ferrell, Austin Brokenbrough, W. Y. Davis, Turner Arrington, Evan R. Cheslerman, James S. Bradley, R. T. Hunter, W. J. Gilbert, H. R. Williams, Thompson McCabe, W. S. Beasley, William A. Burrows and Miss Jane Rutherford.

In and Out of Town.
Dr. and Mrs. Charles V. Carrington, Miss Frances Carrington and Miss Avis Grant will sail to-day from New York to spend some time abroad.

Misses Therese Nurney and Bessie Holliday of Suffolk, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Smyth, on Monument Avenue.

Mrs. S. W. Williams leaves to-day to visit Mrs. William A. Anderson in Lexington.

Misses Mary and Lullie Johnston returned to Richmond Wednesday, after spending several weeks cruising in Southern waters.

Miss Katherine Pinner, of Suffolk, is visiting Miss Louise Williams at 2500 Grove Avenue.

Mrs. Edward Jefferson Duffey, of New York, is visiting her father, P. P. Ryan, of 329 North Harrison Street.

Mrs. E. H. Miller, of Danville, is visiting her niece, Mrs. T. A. Miller, at her home near Westhampton.

Mrs. C. S. Daniel and her daughter, Huldah Staples, of Roanoke, who attended the Y. W. C. A. convention here and have been visiting friends on West Grace Street, left yesterday for Farmville.

The Rev. George H. Atkinson, of Albemarle, N. C., president of the Albemarle Normal and Industrial Institute for Girls, is in Richmond this week.

Miss Grace Meacham has returned to this city, after visiting friends in Suffolk.

Nicol-McClintock.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Richmond, Va., April 16.]—A marriage, with a pretty tinge of romance, in that the contracting parties had come from the North to the South, took place in Virginia's most historic Colonial Church, took place here this afternoon at 2 o'clock, when Miss Elsie Thompson McClintock, of Pittsburgh, Pa., became the bride of Frank Dwight Nicol, of Detroit, Mich. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol, of Detroit, were accompanied by their pretty and attractive twin daughters, Bruton and Julia, who were bridesmaids. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol, of Detroit, were accompanied by their pretty and attractive twin daughters, Bruton and Julia, who were bridesmaids. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lewis Gibbs, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Forest Hill, and Dr. Russell Cecil, was celebrated before an improvised altar of Ardenstone lilacs and white lilies. The rooms were lighted with many candles and a stringed orchestra, screened by dogwood and palms played the wedding music and for the reception following.

The bride's wedding gown was an exquisite affair fashioned of softest white duchesse and real lace. The bodice of duchesse lace was made on a foundation of white chiffon and the drapery of the long court train was caught up with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a tulle veil edged with real lace and arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a presentation bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a diamond necklace and pendant, the groom's gift, and she was given away by her father, with whom she entered the drawing-room. Mrs. Robert Davy Eaglesfield, of Indianapolis, Ind., was matron of honor and wore a French gown of white charmeuse made with pannels of white chiffon embroidered in yellow and finished with touches of real lace and gold-colored satin. The maid of honor, Miss Margarette Wessler, a cousin of the bride, was gowned in yellow satin brocade draped in lace and trimmed in rhinestones, and both the shower bouquets of honor carried by the bridesmaids, Misses Caroline Pickrell, of New York, and Virginia

Men's Night Robes and Pajamas
Full Cut, Low Collar Cambric Night Robes, 50c.
Fancy Madras and Cambric Pajamas, $1.50 value, 98c.
$2.50 Solid Color Madras Pajamas, $1.69.
$3.00 Silk Finished Pajamas, $1.98.

Thalheimer's
Is Radio-Active

DETROIT GAS RANGES.
ALASKA REFRIGERATORS.
OLD HICKORY FURNITURE.
SOLD ONLY BY

JURGENS
THE FREED CO.
614 EAST BROAD STREET

Use Pratt's Astral Oil for Incubators.
N. Klein & Son, Inc.
620 East Broad.

New Process Gas Ranges
$12.50 and Up.
Jones Bros. & Co., Inc.
1420 E. Main St.

REINACH, Inc.
107 E. BROAD STREET
MILLINERY—Women's and Misses' Outer Apparel.

Attention is directed to our unique display of
GOLD JEWELRY.
Smith & Webster,
805 E. Main Street.

Seeing is Believing!

Then Let Us "Show You" What We Have in

Excellent Slightly Used Second-Hand Upright Pianos

"Hallett & Davis," full size, ebony case, rich tone $149

"Singer," slightly used; excellent condition; a rare bargain $165

Second-Hand Ebony Case "Wheelock," Great! $176

And Many Others at Surprisingly Low Prices While They Last.

Come and see for yourself.

The Carley Company
Successors Cable Piano Co.

ceremony, which was private except for the guests, who came from a distance, was a religious service, performed by the Rev. E. Ruffin Jones, rector of Bruton Parish. Miss M. Eva Wright presided at the organ during the ceremony.

The bride's maid of honor and only attendant was her twin sister, Miss Jeanette McClintock. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Henry G. Nicol, of Detroit, as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Oliver McClintock, of Pittsburgh. Immediately following the ceremony at the church a large reception and wedding dinner was given at the Colonial Inn. The young couple left by automobile for Old Point on Monday North. They will reside in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. McClintock have been sojourning in Williamsburg several weeks, accompanied by their pretty and attractive twin daughters, Bruton and Julia, who were bridesmaids. The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nicol, of Detroit, were accompanied by their pretty and attractive twin daughters, Bruton and Julia, who were bridesmaids. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lewis Gibbs, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd at Forest Hill, and Dr. Russell Cecil, was celebrated before an improvised altar of Ardenstone lilacs and white lilies. The rooms were lighted with many candles and a stringed orchestra, screened by dogwood and palms played the wedding music and for the reception following.

The bride's wedding gown was an exquisite affair fashioned of softest white duchesse and real lace. The bodice of duchesse lace was made on a foundation of white chiffon and the drapery of the long court train was caught up with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore a tulle veil edged with real lace and arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a presentation bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The bride's only ornament was a diamond necklace and pendant, the groom's gift, and she was given away by her father, with whom she entered the drawing-room. Mrs. Robert Davy Eaglesfield, of Indianapolis, Ind., was matron of honor and wore a French gown of white charmeuse made with pannels of white chiffon embroidered in yellow and finished with touches of real lace and gold-colored satin. The maid of honor, Miss Margarette Wessler, a cousin of the bride, was gowned in yellow satin brocade draped in lace and trimmed in rhinestones, and both the shower bouquets of honor carried by the bridesmaids, Misses Caroline Pickrell, of New York, and Virginia

Huxley-Coleman.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Richmond, Va., April 16.]—One of the notable social events of the season was the marriage of St. Paul's, which took place at 8 o'clock to-night of Miss Carroll Huxley, of this city, and Henry Minor Coleman, of Chicago. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Coleman, parents of the bride, entertained the bride and groom at a wedding supper. After an extended wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Huxley will be at home in Chicago.

Granger-Brown.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Richmond, Va., April 16.]—Geo. S. Granger and Miss Virginia Belle Brown, both of Stafford County, Va., united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wesley Brooks, in Falmouth, near this city, Rev. J. H. Cowherd, pastor of the Methodist Baptist Church, officiated. The groom has been engaged as an electrician in the United States Navy for the past years. His term of services expires in May, after which he will turn his hands to progressive farming in Stafford.

Weddings at Winchester.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Winchester, Va., April 16.]—Joseph Hodgson, a young business man, and Miss Irene Virginia Haldeman, were married yesterday at a wedding supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob S. Haldeman, by Rev. Alfred Jones, and left on a Northern trip, after which they will live here.

John Raymond Everhart and Miss Nore Virginia Rodgers, two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rodgers, were married yesterday by Rev. William T. Walters, of the Christian Church. They will live here.

Six captains, a lieutenant and two sergeants, all practically the same age, in the opinion of Major Richard Sylvester, their chief, did everything possible to preserve order and protect the marchers, and the officers and men under his direction did their best to carry out his instructions. The captains declared that if they had been permitted to stop street car traffic, two hours sooner than they did, they would have had little trouble controlling the crowds and protecting the parade. Several officers said that there were not enough regular policemen to handle the crowds, and added that the hundreds of "specials" sworn in for duty that day were practically useless because of lack of training and discipline, and owing to the fact that they were not in uniform.

Captain Daly, who commanded a section of the avenue between Fourth and a Half Street and Seventh, where the first trouble started, suggested that he might have handled things better if some of the mounted police detailed to escort President-Elect Wilson from the Union Station to his hotel had been detained instead along Pennsylvania Avenue.

Mr. Arthur M. Siskran, an interne from the emergency hospital, told about being stopped on the avenue while making a run back to that institution by a man who stepped out of the line of march and waved a cane in his driver's face. He said he learned the next day that it was Senator Polkexter.

The committee expects to hear several officers to-morrow, and probably will end the hearing Friday.

WILL PLAY IMPORTANT ROLE IN NEW REGIME

Prince Nicholas Particular Chum and Adviser of His Brother, King of Greece.

BY LA MARQUE DE FONTENAY.

PRINCE NICHOLAS of Greece, who was the first to proclaim his brother Constantine as King, at Salonica, within an hour of the assassination of his father in that city, is destined to play a very important role in the new reign. The new ruler of Greece has no less than four brothers, all grown up. But Nicholas has always been his particular confidant, chum and adviser. He and Constantine formed indeed, together with the late King, a trio, who, during the last few years, were in the closest sort of communion, having no secrets from one another, consulting among themselves about every step to be taken, and working in complete unison and sympathy. Nicholas is a very able and good looking, is an expert artillery officer, knowing more about the guns and about all pertaining thereto, of every military power in Europe, than any other officer of the Greek army. He is quiet, thoughtful, utterly devoid of hauteur and arrogance, and is happily married to the Russian Grandduchess Helene, only daughter of the late Grandduke Vladimir. She is far and away the most attractive and popular of the women of the reigning house of Greece, which Constantine has inherited with the possible exception of the late Queen Olga. She is very rich in her own right, has done splendid service in connection with the ambulance corps during the war now in progress, and is at heart a true patriot, along with the new Queen Sophia, who is a sister of the Kaiser, and is inclined to resent the presence among the royal family at Athens of Prince George's French wife, Marie Bonaparte, owing to the fact that the latter's great wealth is derived from part ownership of the public gambling tables at Monte Carlo, and to her obscure origin, her father's mother having been a working plumber's daughter.

What Greece owes to her reigning house is best shown by the fact that the crown prince, however, reads the newspapers in their unexpurgated condition, took the trouble to investigate the entire affair, and at a recognition given at Athens by the Governor of the province of East Macedonia to the members of the provincial Diet, remarked in the hearing of at least a dozen people, "Yes, I have all the papers in the case, and I am going to submit them to my father, when I go to Berlin, since either he will continue to be kept in ignorance of the affair by his entourage." He thus intimated that if he sent the papers to the Emperor, they might not reach him.

It may be recalled in this connection that it was the crown prince who first brought to his father's attention the infamous charges against Count Phil Eulenburg, Count William Hohenhausen, etc., which had been kept from the Emperor. As soon as it was made alive by his son of their real nature, and to the gravity of the evidence against the mon, he acted with vigor and decision. There have been other instances of the same kind, in which the crown prince has been first to render his father cognizant of what was actually going on around him, and also of matters which everybody knew, but which he had kept from his father.

It may be asked why the men around the Emperor, his military suite, his court dignitaries, etc., should be so afraid of speaking to the monarch, that the entire court and these men depends upon the favor and the caprice of their sovereign, and if they offend him, even so much as by a single word, means retirement, and relegation to half-pay in the case of the army and navy officers, and the oblivion of private life where court dignitaries are concerned. No one cares to tell the Emperor that he has made a mistake; for he is very impulsive, very quick to lose his temper, and more than that, extremely suspicious.

Then, again, it is contrary to etiquette to speak to him unless spoken to, or to tackle any subject which he has not himself broached. The late Prince Albert Bismarck, when Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, was severely rapped on the knuckles on several occasions for presuming on his friendship with William since the latter's childhood, to attempt to speak to him about a matter, concerning which his majesty had not consulted him.

Also, when some time ago Count Augustus Eulenburg, grand master of the court, and who has been longer than anyone else in the palace, and whose attendance on the Kaiser, was asked to procure an audience for a very clever young officer who had just returned from West Africa, he considered it necessary to go in a very roundabout way in order to accomplish his end. The request had been made by a through one of the chamberlains in attendance on the Emperor. So the next day, at the Imperial luncheon table, Count Eulenburg began talking near the Kaiser, began talking to the chamberlain about the officer, mentioning what an interesting fellow he was. As Eulenburg intended, the Emperor caught a snatch of the conversation, and once inquired of the count, "Who is that you are talking about?"

"A wonderfully clever man," replied Eulenburg. "He is just back from the west coast of Africa, and the things that he has seen are really most curious."

"Why, I would like to see him," remarked the Emperor. "Arrange to summon him to the palace."

The officer in this way not only had his audience, but managed to so please the Emperor that he was asked to stay to lunch, and his future was assured. But if Count Eulenburg had gone about it less indirectly, the Emperor would in all probability have refused it, in his anxiety to avoid being bothered by despicable courtiers. It is only fair to add that if he is so suspicious, even of his oldest and most tried retainers, it is because he has been taught by sad experience.

Count Horie de Beaucaire's sudden death at Copenhagen, where he has been acting for the last six years as minister plenipotentiary of France, will tend to precipitate the impending movement in the French diplomatic service. For the posts of ambassador to Japan, and of envoy at the Hague, are also becoming vacant. The Comte de Beaucaire, a Breton, and married to a daughter of the well-known house of Le Gouffec de Traissan, was not only a very charming man, of the most agreeable manners, but also a most graceful writer, and his name figures as the author of a remarkable series of historical studies, among the most notable of which is the romantic story of that French girl, Eleonore d'Obrouse, who of pretty noble birth, became, through her marriage to a duke of Brunswick, the ancestress of King George of England. The late Comte de Beaucaire, a well-known figure by the name of "petit comte de Roi," owing to his being descended from a brother of Eleanor d'Obrouse, the ancestress of Edward VII. The title of the Comte de Beaucaire's volume on the subject is "Mémoires de la Maison de Brunswick."

(Copyright, 1913, by the Brentwood Company.)

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
Changes tendency toward disease to tendency toward health. No alcohol. Sold for 60 years.
Ask Your Doctor.

Wedding Flowers
Should be of "guaranteed" quality. Flowers come direct from our own greenhouses—delivered anywhere in perfect condition. Prices are moderate. Get our estimate first. Telephone Madison 620.

HAMMOND
VIRGINIA'S LARGEST FLORIST
100 East Broad St., Richmond, Va.

SOUVENIRS of all kinds and prices at Tragle's
Ladies' Russian Calf Rubber Sole Oxfords, $2.50 to $4.00.
Men's Russian Calf Rubber Sole Oxfords, $3.50 to $5.00.

Hotheimer's
Northwest Corner Third and Broad.
The Latest in Ice Cream and Cakes from Shepherd's New Factory
2008 W. Broad St. Call Mad. 7148

when King George celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his election to the crown, he was able to boast that by having public relations and diplomacy and without shedding a single drop of Hellenic blood, he had managed to increase the size of the kingdom by more than a third; in fact, nearly one-half. The end of the present war, in which King Constantine has so repeatedly led the Greek army to victory, cannot fail to still further add to the territory of the kingdom, until it is double as large as it was two years ago.

Despite all the stories that are constantly being circulated, implying the existence of bad blood between the Kaiser and his son-in-law, the crown prince, is becoming known as a very wise and useful counselor of his father. Everybody has heard of the very handsome reputation made by Emperor Rudolph, the Emperor's public dignified a tenant of the name of Rudolph on his private estate of Cadzand, as a worthless farmer, when he found that reports of his steward on the strength of which he had abused the Emperor, were untrue. But what is not so universally known, is that it is the crown prince who brought his father to understand that he had made a mistake.

There had been a great deal of popular feeling on the subject, and thanks to the backing which Sobst received from the agricultural authorities, societies and experts of the province in which he was situated, all of whom bore tribute to his character and his capacity as a first-class farmer, was held up by the press as an object of unjust oppression, and even persecution, on the part of his sovereign. The Emperor was kept in ignorance of this.

The crown prince, however, reads the newspapers in their unexpurgated condition, took the trouble to investigate the entire affair, and at a recognition given at Athens by the Governor of the province of East Macedonia to the members of the provincial Diet, remarked in the hearing of at least a dozen people, "Yes, I have all the papers in the case, and I am going to submit them to my father, when I go to Berlin, since either he will continue to be kept in ignorance of the affair by his entourage." He thus intimated that if he sent the papers to the Emperor, they might not reach him.

It may be recalled in this connection that it was the crown prince who first brought to his father's attention the infamous charges against Count Phil Eulenburg, Count William Hohenhausen, etc., which had been kept from the Emperor. As soon as it was made alive by his son of their real nature, and to the gravity of the evidence against the mon, he acted with vigor and decision. There have been other instances of the same kind, in which the crown prince has been first to render his father cognizant of what was actually going on around him, and also of matters which everybody knew, but which he had kept from his father.

It may be asked why the men around the Emperor, his military suite, his court dignitaries, etc., should be so afraid of speaking to the monarch, that the entire court and these men depends upon the favor and the caprice of their sovereign, and if they offend him, even so much as by a single word, means retirement, and relegation to half-pay in the case of the army and navy officers, and the oblivion of private life where court dignitaries are concerned. No one cares to tell the Emperor that he has made a mistake; for he is very impulsive, very quick to lose his temper, and more than that, extremely suspicious.

Then, again, it is contrary to etiquette to speak to him unless spoken to, or to tackle any subject which he has not himself broached. The late Prince Albert Bismarck, when Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, was severely rapped on the knuckles on several occasions for presuming on his friendship with William since the latter's childhood, to attempt to speak to him about a matter, concerning which his majesty had not consulted him.

Also, when some time ago Count Augustus Eulenburg, grand master of the court, and who has been longer than anyone else in the palace, and whose attendance on the Kaiser, was asked to procure an audience for a very clever young officer who had just returned from West Africa, he considered it necessary to go in a very roundabout way in order to accomplish his end. The request had been made by a through one of the chamberlains in attendance on the Emperor. So the next day, at the Imperial luncheon table, Count Eulenburg began talking near the Kaiser, began talking to the chamberlain about the officer, mentioning what an interesting fellow he was. As Eulenburg intended, the Emperor caught a snatch of the conversation, and once inquired of the count, "Who is that you are talking about?"

"A wonderfully clever man," replied Eulenburg. "He is just back from the west coast of Africa, and the things that he has seen are really most curious."

"Why, I would like to see him," remarked the Emperor. "Arrange to summon him to the palace."

The officer in this way not only had his audience, but managed to so please the Emperor that he was asked to stay to lunch, and his future was assured. But if Count Eulenburg had gone about it less indirectly, the Emperor would in all probability have refused it, in his anxiety to avoid being bothered by despicable courtiers. It is only fair to add that if he is so suspicious, even of his oldest and most tried retainers, it is because he has been taught by sad experience.

Count Horie de Beaucaire's sudden death at Copenhagen, where he has been acting for the last six years as minister plenipotentiary of France, will tend to precipitate the impending movement in the French diplomatic service. For the posts of ambassador to Japan, and of envoy at the Hague, are also becoming vacant. The Comte de Beaucaire, a Breton, and married to a daughter of the well-known house of Le Gouffec de Traissan, was not only a very charming man, of the most agreeable manners, but also a most graceful writer, and his name figures as the author of a remarkable series of historical studies, among the most notable of which is the romantic story of that French girl, Eleonore d'Obrouse, who of pretty noble birth, became, through her marriage to a duke of Brunswick, the ancestress of King George of England. The late Comte de Beaucaire, a well-known figure by the name of "petit comte de Roi," owing to his being descended from a brother of Eleanor d'Obrouse, the ancestress of Edward VII. The title of the Comte de Beaucaire's volume on the subject is "Mémoires de la Maison de Brunswick."

(Copyright, 1913, by the Brentwood Company.)

Sample Shoes, Half Price
ALBERT STEIN
KING OF SHOES,
Corner 5th and Broad

The House of Fashion
Bernard Frances & Co.
Broad and Fifth Sts.

See Our 1913 Patterns of GO-CARTS and CARRIAGES.
Rothert & Co.
Fourth and Broad.

Save The Labels and Get Valuable Premiums
AMERICAN BREAD AND BAKING CO.,
6 East Leigh Street.

Diamond Rings

We show only the most perfect diamonds—and our extensive patronage shows that our prices are consistent.

SCHWARZSCHILD BROS.,
Richmond's Leading Jewelers,
Second and Broad Streets.

WORLD'S BIGGEST BUNK IS EUROPE

Traveler Feels Just Like Rube Who Has Bought Gold Brick.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
New York, April 16.—Frederick H. Miller, of Evanston, Ill., does not like Europe or Egypt. He said so to-day on returning from his first vacation in forty years.

Mr. Miller, who is a wealthy carriage manufacturer in the Chicago suburb, arrived here to-day on the same ship with Frank Klaus, the Pittsburgh middleweight, and Frank Kramer, the bicycle rider. He has been abroad since Christmas.

"I feel just like a rube who has bought a gold brick," said Miller. "I never got so badly stung in my life. Europe is the biggest bunk in the world."

"The Alps are nothing but foothills. You could lose them in the Rocky Mountains."

"Venice smells to heaven. The health authorities in any village in the United States would clean up those dirty canals in forty-eight hours."

"Monte Carlo is a joke. The gamblers there are pikers. The average States plays a steeper game than they do there."

"My only memory of Berlin is stale beer and rotten cigars. I brought back some of the cigars to hand to some of my alleged friends."

"Paris is a city of cheap idle shows. The boasted beauty of Paris women fades when compared with some girls I know in Evanston."

"London is only a city of gloom, fog and influenza."

"Egypt, he described as a 'land of awful smells and moth-eaten camels.'"

AGED MAN SHOTS HIMSELF IN HEAD

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lancaster, Va., April 16.—Samuel Straughn, aged about sixty-five years, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself in the head with a shotgun at his home at Wicomico Church. He was the eldest son of the late Judge Samuel Straughn, formerly a member of the County Courts of Lancaster and Northumberland. He leaves a widow and two daughters. His act is said to have been caused by dependency over his wife, in which he had many years. He was a resident of Texas.

LEARN THE SECRET OF KEEPING YOUNG

Good Digestion Necessary—Mi-o-na for Stomach Ills.
Do you want to be comfortable and happy until a ripe old age? Do you want to learn the secret of looking and feeling young? It is not much of a secret after all—just give a little more thought to the care of your digestive organs.

Nearly all the diseases affecting mankind have their origin in the stomach and bowels. It is what you eat that causes most of your discomforts. If you overload the stomach, or take food that does not agree—kick back as it were—trouble is indicated by headache, dizziness, sour stomach, gas-trills, and other symptoms of indigestion. Then it is that you should take Mi-o-na, the specific for out-of-order stomachs.

Old age is a general wearing out process. It starts when you overtax or ignore the digestive system. If the stomach and bowels are not right, you cannot properly digest your food and you are improperly nourished. Your resistance is low. You are lacking in vitality. You are always ailing—disease may find you on any prey. Resistance must be kept up to normal if old age does not appear before its time.

Protect yourself with Mi-o-na—it is not only a digester to give prompt relief in acute distress, but is second to none as a stomach and intestinal tonic to build up the tissues, making them well and strong. Always—kicks Mi-o-na in the house—carry it when traveling—use at the first sign of stomach distress—small tablet, easy to take. Tragle Drug Co.